CREDITS AND COURSES

During the three-week study period, students will take two courses centered on language and culture, for a total of six credits. Upper-level undergraduate and graduate students will be able to sign up for a literature course taught by the program director. The courses will be adapted to the level of proficiency reached by the student participating in the program. They will be multi-listed accordingly. In terms of content, level of difficulty, contact hours, student involvement, and grading, the courses will be essentially similar to the courses taught on campus at Georgia State University. The language courses will be taken at the prestigious Institut de Touraine, in classes of no more than fifteen students. The latest technical laboratory equipment will be at their disposal. Please see Program Director for more information.
